MOTHER COMES TO SEE DUKE WED

Duchess of Roxburghe Arrives on the Steamship Campania to Witness Her Son's Marirage to Miss Goelet.

HE MEETS HER AND HIS SISTER AT CUNARD PIER.

Duke Said It Was Uncertain Where His Mother Would Stay While She Is in New

When the steamship Campania, of the Cunard line, pushed her way into her oler to-day the young Duke of Roxourghe was there to meet his mother and sister, who have come to this country to attend the wedding of the Duke Miss May Goelet on Tuesday next. Few persons knew the handsome, wellressed, athletic young man who strolled up and down the pier before the arrival the boat. That he was a trifle neryous was shown in his manner. He istantly swung a light walking stick and pulled at his small mustache.
"Where will your mother and sister stop while in New York?" the Duke was asked by a reporter for The Even-

"It is possible we will go directly to the Goelets in Fifth avenue. I have an automobile here, and we will get into it as soon as my relatives arrive." 'Aren't any members of the Goelet family going to be here to meet your mother and sister?" was asked. "No, I think not," he replied. "I shall be the only person who will meet them."

Man Seeks Robert Goelet.

Just then a man, who was not known the detectives on the pler, asked to admitted to the outside to a position where he could get a good look at all the persons who came to meet the Duke's mother and sister.

"I want to get a good look at young Robert Goelet." the stranger explained to the detectives. When told that young Mr. Goelet was not on the pier and was t coming the man turned away.

Who the man is and why he wanted to et a look at Robert Goelet cannot be explained, unless he is interested in the alleged imposter, who, representing himsolf as both J. Ogden Goelet and later as Robert Goelet, made arrangements to marry Miss Eleunor Anderson, the telegraph operator, who is the daughter of the Sixth avenue oyster house man.

The Duke turned away when the detectives refused to admit the stranger It is possible he was some curious per-son who wanted to see the young millionaire because o fthe notoriety into which he has been brought by the alleged imposter.

The reporter then continued to talk with the Duke. "Don't you know," explained the Duke, "all this is new to me. In England we are not accustomed to discuss our private affairs with the press. It is very amusing to me."

The sister, Lady Isabel Innes-Ker, is a woman of twenty-six, of handsome figure and distinguished bearing. Her dress consisted of a brown tailor-made gown, trimmed with black ribbons and a tail nicture hat. Her coloring is somewhat darker than her brother's, but she has the Roxburghe expression. It can be told at a glance that she is her mother's daughter and her brother's sister.

No sooner had the gang plank been placed than the Duke, now unable to conceal his excitement, bounded un the plank, past the attendants, pushing his way past the pasengers hurrying ashore, where friends awaited them. Had the attendants been quick enough they would have held the Duke back.

Ha made his way hurriedly to his mother, folded her in his arms and said. "I'm so glad you have come."

Then he turned to his sister and his greeting to her was most affectionate.

It was plain that the Roxburghes are a devoted family.

Then he brought down the mother and sister, hastily bundled them into the automobile, leaped in and took the seat by the mother and was whisked away to the Goelet residence.

On board with the Duchess and her daughter was Mrs. Cornelius Adair, one of the beautiful American girls who is now one of the queens of London sordety. She came to America to attend the wedding. Mrs. Adair formerly was from Tennessee. Accompanying her was Miss Helen Post. Miss May Phillips, of Brooklyn,

Judge Garrison, in special term of the Supreme Court at Long Island City. to-day appointed William H. Familton guardian ad litem of his daughter. Margaret J. Familton, the young Whitestone woman who is accused of having been married to two men within

The appointment was made on the application of Walter H. Bahno, counsel for Mr. Familton, and was sought for the purpose of enabling Mr. Familton to bring an action to annul the marriages of his daughter to Frederick Sugden Kirkman, of Flushing, and Edward J. Roach, of Cincinnatti. Accompanying the petition was a statement by Mr. Familton, who sets forth that his daughter is not yet twenty-one years of age. Mr. Familton alleges that the girl was married against her will and by means of fraud, threats and lures. He says that the father of Kirkman, who is not nineteen years old, never consented to his son's marriage The petition further says that Miss
